SMELL

There are many restaurants and Food Cart nearby.
When you walk down the street, you can smell hamburgers, cheese and croissant.

Even though I ate, I still felt angry.

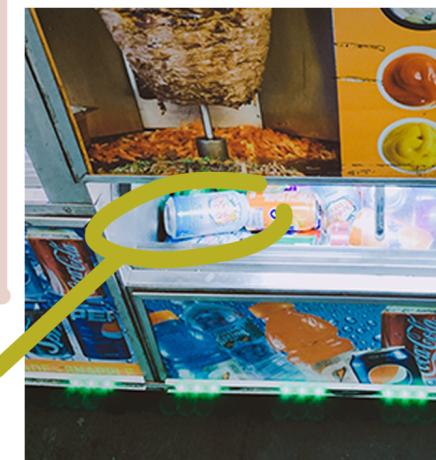

SOUND

Two of the loudest voices in the neighborhood

- Air Conditioner
- train sound

Taste

I bought a bottle of ice Canada Dry, it was cold and I could feel the bubbles jumping. After a while, I can taste the sweet taste from the drink.

T O U C H

The evening at the New York Stock Market was like the morning, but different.

Of all the things I recorded over the course of my two visits, touch was the only thing that changed the most.

The first walk to the New York Stock Market was at noon on a weekend, the second on a work day evening.

- in the morning, a lot of people come here to travel, so they will sit in the attached seat for a while, take photos and have a rest. It could be because someone else has done it or because the sun is shining, and sometimes the chair is still hot.

- but in the evening, more office workers are rushing home, so everyone is walking fast and the chairs are cold.

-when I went there at noon, I bought a tin of Canada Dry. And because it's iron, with a little bit of force you can pull a piece in, and then you have a little angle that sticks out.

- at night, I didn't buy food nearby because I was trying to lose weight, but it was warm because the cold wind blew hard and I put my hands in my pockets during the whole walk.

- On the way back I felt for the keys and the metro card in my pocket. One was hard and cold. The other was a flexible card.

- A Professor is introducing the history of the New York Stock Market to his students.

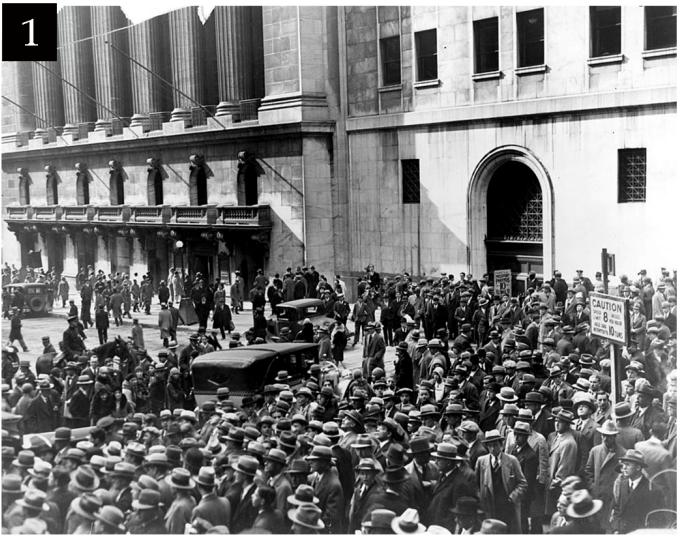

Sight in New York Stock Market

- On weekends, there will be a lot of tourists (Tourists from all over the world) taking photos here
- Different languages

There is a girl who dressed pink jacket, and take a picture with the sculpture in the middle of the road.

- A road was still under construction, so an excavator was parked on the road

- "The black and white photograph shows a massive crowd of people standing outside of the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) after the stock market crash of 1929. It was on "Black Tuesday," October 29, 1929, that investors traded around 16 million shares on the NYSE in a single day that resulted in billions of dollars being lost on the market. This led to America's spiral into what would be known as the Great Depression."¹

- Many people gathered around the statue.

Sight in New York Stock Market (1929)

- A man who was selling his car in front of the New York Stock Market, And he wrote it is because he lost all his stock in the market.

Sound

Through the photos, I can feel many people gathering together,
So there must be a lot of voices,

- The sound of turning a newspaper
- The sound of crying

Taste

People at that time went bankrupt because of the great depression and the Stock Market Crash

- So at that time the government would give people some subsidized food
 - Like soup and bread
 - Most people don't eat very well, so I think it should be ordinary food without a lot of taste
 - It's either delicious food, or bread that's usually hard to dry for hunger, and very thin soup
- If not for government subsidized food
- People'll be wandering the streets, eating rotten food.

Touch

"Wall Street's 'Black Tuesday,' which presaged the Great Depression, was partly cloudy and partly chilly with a high/low of 49/37, about ten degrees below average."⁶

It was ten degrees outside. It wasn't very cold then, but it was already in the autumn season.

- So the railing on the road and the chair will have some cool, when the touch will be cold
- Standing with people, I occasionally touch other people's coats
- The coats are made of cotton and wool.
 - It'll feel a little soft, but it'll also have some static

Smell

At that time, many men gathered together,

- smell a lot of smoke
- According to the photo, the car can still drive in, so you can smell the diesel

Many went bankrupt because of the great depression,

- You can smell different perfumes on each person's body
- It could be cologne, it could be other
- Or it smells like haven't showered in a long time.

ECONOMY

100/Y/29A/JFK

Even the scale has changed dramatically over the next hundred years , but the sky is not changed, every day will also be sunrise and sunset. So here I put a picture of the sky to take into the future.

I choose a hundred years later, because the time from the past I chose is also about 100 years. (1929 to 2020)

I don't think the architecture of New York Stock Market will change, because it is a building of historical significance. It hasn't changed in hundreds years. In the future, it should be surrounded by an enormous sense of technology, compared to a small line of leds showing stock price movements.

In the future, there should be a huge LED screen hanging at the intersection of the pedestrian street. Whenever people walk into the pedestrian street, they will have a feeling of walking into the stock market. Visually adds to the sense of finance.

There will be more AI and LED applications. Compared with food cart, roadside will be replaced by food machine. As long as the food is input, the machine can make it automatically.

There will still be tourists in every language taking pictures, but there will be more to tell when the stock market is introduced

I don't think there will be more plants. I think in 100 years only central park will have plants in Manhattan. Because recently the government is planning to cut down the plants to build high speed.

TASTE & SMELL

There should be a lot of food machines then

But drinks will still be the most popular because eating on the road is a real hassle. So the taste there should be all kinds of coffee and tea, because it is the financial street, so everyone is still very busy every day to and from work, need coffee or tea to refresh.

At that time, I believed that there would be more people from different countries, not only white and black, but also Asian. So there will be more Asian restaurants around.

There should be more soy rice than sweet chicken. People in other countries don't just assume that Chinese food is the usual stereotype, because they will be eating all kinds of other cuisines as well.

The streets are cold with LCD screens and glass. There will be no more garbage on the roads because there will be more police patrols.

Visitors can simply reach out and choose their next destination or what they want to eat. People working nearby can watch the traffic in the annex through the LCD screen

There will be more lights around this pedestrian street. At that time, the street will be connected by superior lights. The lights were hard, cold pillars of iron

There will be more self-driving cars on the road, so there will be less and less honking. Because you don't need people to drive.

The subway is also up to date, and there are no loud subway stops any more

Instead, it's the sound of helicopters, thousands of which fly over the New York Stock Market every day. Artists can no longer play songs on the street because of security patrols nearby.

Many tourists still come to see the former economic center and speak a variety of languages at the gates of the building.
